

 A large photograph of a man with grey hair, wearing a grey polo shirt, holding a grey llama. The llama is wearing a red and blue harness and has its mouth open, showing its teeth. The man is holding a trophy that says "make a difference awards WINNER The Animal Award Harry The Llama".

Llots of llaughhs with Harry

Llama wins top award

Harry's llovely llaughhs

A therapy llama has won an award for his work.

Harry the llama has been announced as the winner of the animal category of the BBC Radio Devon Make a Difference Awards.

The 13-year-old llama had a rough start in life before being rescued by Maggie Jee, founder of Peak Hill Llamas and Llamas4Good CIC, based in Sidford.

Maggie said: "We are so proud of Harry.

"Despite his bad start in life, he has blossomed into the most wonderful therapy llama, having learnt not just to trust humans but to actually enjoy helping them.

"He makes a difference to so many people's lives, bringing joy and laughter to everyone he meets.

"He is so intuitive and knows exactly what he needs to do to help people – he'll even go right to the bedside of anyone who is bedridden so they can benefit from stroking his soft fleece."

Maggie Jee's partner Paul with Harry and the BBC award